Award-winning filmmaker headlines Perth Flickerfest Masterclass

This April, award-winning filmmaker, Antony Webb is headlining a Flickerfest Masterclass for Western Australian film students. During the free session, Antony will be joined by Flickerfest festival Director, Bronwyn Kidd, where they'll cover the process of making short films, what can be learnt from screening your films at Academy accredited and BAFTA recognised festivals, and how short films prepare filmmakers for feature length productions. The free masterclass is on Wednesday 21 April at 2.30pm at SAE Creative Institute's Perth campus at Northbridge.

Throughout the course of his career, Antony has acted as a writer, producer, director, cinematographer or editor on over 100 projects including short films, feature films, documentaries, webseries, commercials, music videos and corporate videos. This has led to a record breaking nine West Australian Screen Awards.

"I'm looking forward to sharing my varied experiences with students and discussing how short films are a key part of the transition into a feature film career," Antony said.

"I've had a long relationship with Flickerfest. The first short I ever wrote played with them over 10 years ago and my two shorts, The Fan, and Carmentis have also been featured."

His film Carmentis went on to receive the gold award at the Western Australian and South Australia ACS Awards last year. For film students looking to follow in his footsteps and win similar awards, Antony gave some valuable tips. "Watch a lot of films with a critical eye, and find out what you did and didn't like about the film and why. Take each film as an opportunity to learn and grow as a storyteller.

“I always tell young filmmakers to keep learning. There should never be a point in your career where you think you know it all - there is always more to learn,” Antony added.

With over 25 years’ in the industry, Bronwyn is excited to be sharing her experiences managing the Academy accredited and BAFTA recognised short film festival, Flickerfest. “I’m really looking forward to sharing my knowledge with students and emerging filmmakers. I will be giving them an insight into the process behind film festivals - which can often be a daunting prospect for new filmmakers.”
